

WARNS WORLD GERMANY MUST HAVE COLONIES

Hitler Lieutenant Says Boiler Must Explode

Berlin, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of propaganda, in a defiant speech before a mass meeting of 25,000 persons tonight warned the world Germany sooner or later must have colonies and "the time is coming when she must demand colonies."

"It cannot go on like this," the Hitler lieutenant declared. "There are countries which have more colonies than they know what to do with."

Referring to the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, Goebbels said: "The Italian people also must live. A nation must live somehow."

"Some day or later a boiler must explode. Whether in this particular case the methods employed are correct is a matter on which I reserve judgment."

Germany does not intend to meddle in any way in the "English-Italian-Ethiopian conflict," the minister continued, "but what others possess we also must possess."

"We will not put up with this indefinitely. We were lashed into a treaty (Versailles) which not statesmen, but only cowards, signed."

Goebbels finally warned the augmented Hitler army to watch its step. "If the red army crosses our border we will chase it out with our Prussian Grenadier regiments," he asserted.

Goebbels also took a fling at the American press "which accuses us of persecuting Jews. They should first see to it that American national heroes do not have to flee from their own country."

The passionate two-hour speech, delivered in Deutschland hall, also included sarcastic references to German citizens who worry about a butter or egg shortage when what the fatherland urgently needs is raw materials for its rearmament program.

"If the fatherland should be attacked we cannot throw butter at the enemy," Goebbels exclaimed. "We have got to have cannon."

Worst Blizzard Of Winter Moves Toward Midwest

Storm Will Bring Four To Six Inches Snow And Drop In Mercury

Chicago, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Snow and falling temperatures tonight followed forecasts of a blizzard of the winter and a precipitate 10-degree plunge of the mercury in this sector of the midwest.

Temperatures hovered in the middle 20's tonight, but Lloyd said he expected it would be forced down to near zero by Sunday.

Riding on winds from the north and east the storm will bring from four to six inches of snow, Lloyd said, and with a shift in wind direction tomorrow will probably move eastward to Lake Erie.

Preparations for the expected blizzard were made in Chicago tonight as a powdery snowfall tied up airplane transport facilities.

The sections in which the storm will be the most severe, Lloyd said, will be central and northern Illinois, central and northern Indiana, northern Missouri, eastern Iowa, southern Wisconsin and lower Michigan.

Weather

For Jacksonville and vicinity—Snow and a moderate cold wave are predicted for this vicinity today. Sunday will be fair and colder with strong northwest winds.

The U. S. Co-operative Weather Bureau at the Norbury Sanitarium last night gave temperatures as: High 31; current 30 and low 22.

Barometer readings were: A. M. 30.03; P. M. 29.74.

RUDYARD KIPLING

Rudyard Kipling British Poet And Novelist Is Dead

Author Dies Early Saturday Morning Following Major Operation

London, Jan. 18.—(Saturday)—Rudyard Kipling, famed British writer of tales and poems of India, died suddenly at 12:10 a. m. today in Middlesex Hospital, less than five days after he had undergone an operation for a perforated stomach ulcer.

Although he had not spoken and had shown almost no visible signs of life for several hours, even his nurses were not aware his end was so near.

Snow fell outside and the entire hospital was still when the dramatic announcement of Kipling's death was made. An excited messenger burst into a waiting room and a voice filled with emotion cried, "Mr. Kipling is dead."

While it had been admitted the writer's condition was "extremely critical" during the evening, periodic bulletins issued up to shortly before his death said his condition was unchanged.

Just before the end, however, Dr. A. E. Webb-Johnson realizing it was unlikely that Kipling had sufficient strength to rally, warned Mrs. Kipling, who was at the bedside with their daughter, to prepare for the worst.

Occasionally during the last hours, Mrs. Kipling had leaned forward and gently stroked her husband's hand, but he was too weak to make any sign of recognition.

Only at the end, which came peacefully, did he seem to recognize his wife and daughter. The two women, worn out with grief after their long vigil and almost in a state of collapse, were put to bed by the hospital staff soon after the noted author died.

Kipling's body lay this morning in the simple bed in the private hospital room with cream-tinted walls which he had occupied since the emergency operation. A bouquet of flowers stood near the window.

The body was expected to remain in the room until preliminary arrangements for interment are made. It may be taken to the hospital chapel before being removed for the funeral.

It was not known whether Kipling's body will be buried in Westminster Abbey, the last resting place of so many of Britain's famed sons.

Thomas Coolidge Resigns From His Treasury Position

Potests Against General Policies Of The New Deal

Washington, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Conservative Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, under secretary of the treasury and directing head of its huge financing operations, resigned today in protest of the general policies of the New Deal.

At the same time the resignation of Lawrence W. Robert, assistant secretary, widely known as Chip Robert, was announced.

While Coolidge would not be quoted, it was learned his opposition was not directed at specific points in the government program, but at things in general. These, it was known, included prominently the question of states rights and the rights of individuals in contrast with federal rights.

It was made clear that Coolidge's resignation had not been prompted by an open break between himself and Secretary Morgenthau, unwavering supporter of Roosevelt policies. Each was unstinting in their praise for the other, but not for publication.

Coolidge expressed his regret at leaving the treasury, said he had been very happy there and Morgenthau made public a letter to Coolidge expressing similar regret and praising his lieutenant's work.

ELLSWORTH AND HIS CO-PILOT ARE RESCUED

Snatched From Death As Starvation Threatens

By Ben Robertson.

Associated Press Foreign Staff London, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Lincoln Ellsworth and his co-pilot were safe aboard a rescue ship tonight, dramatically snatched from death in the icy Antarctic one week before starvation threatened their lives.

Both were well, although Ellsworth, noted explorer, was suffering from a slight cold.

The rescue ship Discovery II, sent out jointly by the British and Canadian governments, found Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, his English-Canadian co-pilot, yesterday in Little America.

The airman, who started out from the Weddel sea to make the first flight across the Antarctic continent, had provisions sufficient only to sustain them until next Friday. They had been unreported since Nov. 23.

Wireless messages from the relief expedition disclosed Ellsworth and Hollick-Kenyon ran out of fuel on their daring and successful flight across the south polar wastes. A damaged radio transmitter kept them from sending out word of their plight.

While the men rested, the colonial office in London, 9,000 miles away, anxiously awaited further details of the rescue and of the successful flight, both of which added important chapters to the gripping history of Antarctic exploration.

Hope for the men's safety had been abandoned by many, but not by their immediate families and other explorers.

This seven word message from the commander of the Discovery II, Lt. L. C. Hill, told the world the fliers were safe.

Ellsworth and Kenyon are both alive and well, it said. A later message said "ship's party returned with Ellsworth Jan. 16."

Government Files Tax Lien Against Alphonse Capone

Sent Bill For $127,439.79 For Liquor He Is Charged With Making

Chicago, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The federal government today sent Al Capone a tax bill of $127,439.79 for illicit liquor he was charged with manufacturing from 1921 to 1932.

It was in the form of a lien on all Capone's property, filed in federal court by Crater H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue.

The department of justice recently ruled that alcohol taxes and penalties were collectable for the manufacture of illicit liquor during prohibition years, so Harrison marked up approximately 115,854 gallons for Al and charged him $1.10 a gallon.

Capone's address in the lien was given at 7244 Prairie avenue and the federal penitentiary at Alcatraz, where he is serving a sentence for income tax evasion.

A lien for a similar amount was also filed against property of Hymie Levin, Chicago, who has already served a penitentiary term for violation of the income tax law.

An income tax lien was filed against property of John W. Keogh, well known Chicagoan, who was indicted several days ago on charges of murdering a lawyer in a court room rampage. The amount sought by the government was $10,836.63 for the years 1931, 1932 and 1933.

Another lien of $250 for income taxes was filed against property of William H. Malone, former chairman of the State Tax Commission, who was recently indicted on charges of violating the income tax law. Malone was said by federal officers to be a fugitive from justice, believed to be somewhere in Germany.

Don G. Geyer Has Resigned Post

Chicago, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Don G. Geyer, secretary of the Pure Milk association—marketing agency for producers supplying metropolitan Chicago—resigned his position today.

Neither Geyer, nor John P. Case, the Dairy Farmer's organization president, would elaborate on the statement in which Case announced Geyer had severed with the association effective on or before March 15.

The announcement was a bare recital of Geyer's affiliation with Pure Milk, of which he was a charter member and field representative until 1929, when he became secretary and general manager, at $10,000 a year.

WILL PAY DIVIDEND
Du Quoin, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Albert B. Ring, received of the First National Bank of Du Quoin, which went into receivership last February, announced today a 30 per cent dividend. The first will be paid within a few days. He said the payment will be approximately $235,000.

SUICIDE VERDICT
Shelbyville, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—A verdict of suicide was returned today by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Miss Margaret Culbertson, 55, who was found shot to death in her home last night. A note directed to her sister, Mrs. E. A. Jones, gave plans for the funeral, which will be held Sunday.

Developments in Hauptmann Case at Glance by A. P.

Governor Hoffman, defending his reprieve of Bruno Hauptmann, attacks prosecution and credibility of some of its "chief witnesses."

Chief executive says he will disclose evidence he has "in due course," to order search pursued for others possibly involved; not convinced Hauptmann entered Lindbergh nursery and took the child.

Reprieve signed by governor and delivered to prison warden, five hours before time set for execution.

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann visits husband in death cell and leaves for New York.

Paul G. Clancy announces in New York that he and associates hired two Washington, D. C., lawyers to make final plea for Hauptmann in federal court.

A high legal source says taxpayers cannot bring legal action to question governor's reprieve as reported contemplated by some group.

Akron, Ohio, authorities place little credence in woman's report that five-year-old blond boy there might be kidnapped Lindbergh child.

State Chairman Campbell Calls Meeting For Two O'clock In Chicago

Chicago, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A test of the state Democratic organization's sympathies, in the rift between Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago and Gov. Henry M. Horner, will come tomorrow.

State chairman, Bruce Campbell, today called a meeting of the state Democratic central committee, "to consider the question of nominating a state ticket," at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Campbell has endorsed Dr. Heenan N. Bunsen, put forward to oppose Governor Horner by the Chicago Democratic leaders, and the governor's supporters said tomorrow's meeting was an attempt to get the full state committee to pledge its support to Bunsen.

But the Horner forces, it was asserted by Daniel Sullivan, administrative auditor, intend to do battle.

Leaders of the Cook county Democratic organization today were urged to support State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney for re-nomination as recorder that he would be dropped from the state "oversight" committee of pre-primary developments.

The Chicago crime commission—impartial body embracing many business leaders—entered the picture. It stated Courtney's "achievements" had "inspired confidence" among the citizenry and had earned him the "open hatred of the predatory."

Courtney himself asserted the reports he was to be dropped had some substance but added: "I am a candidate and will fight."

United States District Attorney Michael Loe of the governor in the 1932 primary, disclosed he had been invited to see Horner.

"No matter who is nominated," Loe said, "I'm neutral."

Alleged Slayer
Pleads Guilty

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The trial of Charles Crawford, 32, Middletown, Ill., for murder in the killing of George Runyon, Maroon night policeman, was halted today by Crawford's surprise plea of guilty to a manslaughter charge.

Crawford was sentenced immediately by Judge C. Y. Miller in circuit court to a term of one to 14 years in Southern Illinois penitentiary at Joliet.

Crawford was on trial as the companion of Russell Harrison, Decatur, when Harrison shot Runyon down in a tavern holdup last March. Harrison pleaded guilty and received a sentence of 199 years in prison.

Howard B. Austin
"Poet Laureate"

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Howard B. Austin, deputy clerk of Sangamon county, is Illinois' first state "poet laureate."

Aside from his duties at the court house here, Austin devotes his time to composing verse and then finding a current song hit which fits the meter of his composition. His specialty is attending political meetings, with his quartet, keeping a record of speeches and proceeding and then at the end of the regular program, with his companions, singing the story of the meeting.

His compositions, which included one at a recent Jackson Day dinner, prompted Governor Horner this week to recognize his ability with appointment as "poet laureate."

KING GEORGE OF ENGLAND IS ILL AT SANDRINGHAM

Condition Is Regarded By Doctors With Some "Disquiet"

Sandringham, Eng., Jan. 17.—(AP)—King George has shown signs of cardiac weakness, it was officially announced tonight, and his condition "must be regarded with some disquiet."

His personal physician, Lord Dawson of Penn, went to Sandringham the night the Prince of Wales also left London for Sandringham, but his visit was described at the palace as an "ordinary" one. It was stated the prince would return to London Sunday.

The official bulletin tonight said: "The bronchial catarrh from which his majesty, the King is suffering is not severe, but there have appeared signs of cardiac weakness which must be regarded with some disquiet. (Signed) Frederic Williams, Stanley Hewitt, Dawson of Penn."

The king at first had been reported suffering with a cold. The other members of his family had been affected by England's winter weather.

The Duke of Gloucester, suffering from a sore throat, is confined to his Buckingham palace room, while the Duchess of York is recovering from influenza pneumonia.

Circles close to the court first learned of the king's cold when he was confined to his room today. Court attaches emphasized that the sudden illness was being carefully watched because of the strain placed upon King George by recent strenuous duties.

They indicated that another cause which occasioned utmost caution by physicians was that King George's spirits have been visibly affected by the death of his sister, Princess Victoria.

He was sleeping quietly tonight at the palace as Sandringham experienced severe winter weather.

The king recovered from an illness in 1928 after suffering from congestion in one lung. Last summer he remained indoors in June after manifold activities during the silver jubilee ceremonial. Late in the fall he absented himself during a session of parliament and again during the centenary ceremony.

Man Serves Prison Term For Crime He Did Not Commit

Frank Bacey Given Pardon By Gov. Martin Davey Of Indiana

Mansfield, O., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Frank Bacey walked from the Ohio reformatory today in dazed realization that he was free after two years' imprisonment for a crime he did not commit.

"I'm in a daze," he said. "I can't believe it. I have kept pinching myself to see if it's true."

He smiled happily as he left the prison arm in arm with his brother, Max, 24, whose 10-day visit in Gov. Martin L. Davey's ante-room helped win him a full pardon.

Frank, 27, looked natty in his prison-made suit and with a fresh haircut and shave, parting gifts of the state. In his pocket was $18, accumulated wages at 4 cents a day for teaching English and mathematics to other prisoners.

Max, hearing a petition signed by every member of the jury that gave Frank 10 to 25 years for a $1,500 Cleveland grocery store robbery, named the governor's office until he issued Bacey the pardon today.

"I spent seven months in jail and 17 months in the reformatory," Frank observed as the prison barber worked on him. "I always had hope of freedom. I never gave up the ship—that would have been fatal. Max quit his job to help me, and now we are going to California, where he has jobs for both of us."

Charles Leasure, who handles clemency petitions for Governor Davey, reported to the governor that Willie Parrish, now in prison for another robbery, confessed the crime for which Bacey was sentenced.

Edward A. Hayes Is Not In Race

Chicago, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Edward J. Hayes of Decatur, Ill., former National Commander of the American Legion, issued a statement today announcing he would not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. It read:

"My attention has been called to the fact that petitions are being distributed over the State of Illinois, designed to bring about my candidacy for governor."

"While I greatly appreciate the efforts of my friends, I am not a candidate and do not intend to become a candidate for governor."

"As the chairman of the Frank Knox for president committee, I am and will remain friendly, but entirely neutral, as to any and all prospective candidates for office on the Republican ticket."

RECEPTIVE TO PROPOSALS
Geneva, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Unofficial Italian sources said tonight Premier Mussolini would be "receptive" to any new peace proposal.

These sources suggested that the chairman of the league council visit Rome in an attempt to establish bases for new peace suggestions.

They predicted that a proposal for an oil boycott against Italy would be buried by the council.

Governor Hoffman Doubts B. Hauptmann Was Ever In The Lindbergh Nursery

Condition Is Regarded By Doctors With Some "Disquiet"

By John Ferris Associated Press Staff Writer Trenton, N. J., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman defended his reprieve of Bruno Hauptmann today with a statement denying impeachment proceedings, attacking the prosecution and expressing his own doubts that the condemned man was ever in the Lindbergh nursery.

Only a few hours before Hauptmann would have walked the six paces from his death cell to the electric chair but for the thirty-day reprieve, the governor struck back sharply at critics of his mysterious activities in the case.

"I am worried," he said, "about the eagerness of some of our law enforcement agencies to bring about the death of this one man so that the books may be closed in the thought that another great crime mystery has been successfully solved."

One of these critics was the chief Hauptmann prosecutor himself, Attorney General David T. Wilentz.

In a telegram to Dr. John F. (Jafse) Condon, ransom intermediary, in Panama, the attorney general said Condon was not wanted here for further questioning and that the governor's reprieve was regretted by him.

This telegram answered one from Condon containing an offer to return voluntarily in view of the governor's recent expression of a desire to have him examined further.

"I regret the course taken by the governor," Wilentz told Condon, "only because it may be construed as a reflection upon the state, the state's witnesses, the police authorities of the several states and of the nation, who participated in gathering and presenting the evidence. x x x"

But the governor's statement, issued soon after Wilentz's telegram to Condon asserted that evidence he had which would be disclosed "in due course" caused him to "question the truthfulness and mental competency of some of the chief witnesses for the state."

"I do doubt," the governor added, "that this crime could have been committed by one man."

As the sharp exchange occurred between his prosecutor and the man who has interested himself in his behalf, Hauptmann rose to what would have been his last day of life—his execution was set for 8 o'clock tonight—and received a visit from his wife, Anna, and his spiritual adviser, the Rev. John Mathiesen.

The reprieve, extending his span of life sixty to ninety days by reason of the requirement for setting of a new death date, was signed by Governor Hoffman and delivered to Col. Mark O. Kimberling, principal keeper of the prison.

DISHPAN PROVES TO BE GOOD FIRE ALARM

LaSalle, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—An excited housewife stood on her porch in nearby Searsville today and whistled away lustily upon a dishpan with a hammer.

The din pervaded the public school across the street. Teachers ran to the window to investigate the uproar. "Hey! The school house is on fire," the housewife yelled.

And so it was. Sparks from the chimney had ignited the roof and it was blazing merrily. The pupils were marched out and the flames extinguished with little loss.

The housewife who discovered the fire had no telephone and was unwilling to trust herself on the icy sidewalks.

Lindbergh Story

Stephen Spitz Completes Term But Will Be Held In County Jail

Chicago, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The bars of the Bridewell held Stephen Spitz and his story of the Lindbergh ransom money at least until Monday. Municipal Judge J. William Brooks said tonight.

Judge Brooks stated he would not consider the pauper's petition by which Spitz hopes to effect his release until that time.

Spitz completed his term of a year in the Bridewell for passing fraudulent checks today, but he was held pending payment of a $1,000 fine imposed by Judge Brooks when he was convicted.

The 52 year old prisoner told investigators he was offered some of the ransom money at 40 cents on the dollar. He said he gave two men $1,800 in Newark and was said to have admitted receiving some of the money.

Bernard M. Pinnigan, his attorney, announced that if Spitz was released he would take him to New Jersey to tell history to Governor Harold Hoffman.

Spitz claimed to know where some of the ransom money was cached, but he would not consider Governor Hoffman's proposal that he tell his story to a life detector.

Vote Tuesday

On Tuesday, Jan. 21, the people of Jacksonville will decide at the polls one of the most important issues in the history of the city, whether or not a municipally-owned commercial light and power plant is to be established here. The election will mark the climax of a long-standing discussion among the people. The problem of municipal ownership has been talked and considered here for years. Tuesday it will be definitely decided one way or the other.

The campaign for and against the light plant project has been intense, and every effort has been made by the local press to give ample publicity to both sides. There have been debates, advertising, public meetings. The campaign has been marked by a sharp division of opinion and much argument. Those who have expressed themselves have been emphatic in the stand taken and have been ready and willing to tell why.

But many citizens have said nothing, and the outcome of the vote rests largely on what they do in the booths next Tuesday. It is a question on which every citizen should vote, for it vitally concerns all of the people.

Distinguished Guests

Whether or not Clarence Williams, who resides on Route 36 near Pittsfield, recently entertained a future President of the United States, only time and politics will tell. Mr. Williams was at home alone one Sunday afternoon when a couple whose faces seemed strangely familiar stopped at his place and became interested in the antiques with which the Williams home is filled.

They were Governor and Mrs. Al Landon of Kansas, and were on their way home to Topeka from Chicago. They stopped to rest, and the Governor stretched on the davenport in front of the fireplace and took a nap. They stayed about two hours. Governor Landon talked some politics, and said he would be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination if the party wanted him.

He described himself as a liberal, and stated that he had been identified with the oil business only as an independent. He is an admirer of Senators Borah, Norris and Capper, all known as liberals. Both Governor and Mrs. Landon are friendly and pleasant to meet. Mr. Williams no doubt wonders if some day his hospitality may be reciprocated with an invitation to visit the White House.

View With Alarm

The omission of an appropriation to care for disabled veterans here from the independent offices appropriation bill now in Congress should cause concern among those who have the welfare of veterans at heart. Gen. Hines has given assurance that the care of veterans here and at Elgin will be continued another year, as he has means available without the appropriation.

But he says nothing about making the operation of the veterans' hospital here permanent. At other times its status has been in doubt, and now the appropriation for its expenses has been left out of the bill to be passed by Congress. That appropriation should be put back where it belongs, as the continuance of the care of veterans here means much to this city and to the local Legion post which has worked hard and faithfully to keep the work going.

A Leap Year Ad

The Pike County Republican in its current issue has taken leap year rather seriously. In order that the ladies of that community who have a yen to seek mates may know whom to approach, the editor publishes a list of one hundred eligible bachelors in the county. In order that there may be no mistakes, he also publishes a list of men who were single in 1932, but who have since been taken off the market.

We are wondering if the one hundred "best fellows" now in circulation should for that ad in the Republican. It would be cheap advertising at a dollar each. Now that the eligibles have been listed, there need be no hunting. It might be a good idea for the unmarried ladies in Pike county to get together and select the candidates they wish to remove from single blessedness, just so there won't be too much rivalry and hair-pulling.

Now Norris Fathers MVA

The bonus, the budget, and the neutrality law are the three most pressing matters on Congress' calendar; but if you like to take a long-range view of things, you might make a note of the fact that Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska has introduced an innocent little bill to set up a Mississippi Valley Authority which would be just like the TVA, only ever so much bigger.

Senator Norris, in fact, wants to see the TVA idea extended to the entire Mississippi basin—which is an enormous territory, extending as it does from Pennsylvania to Montana. And the reason his bill is worth noticing is that this aging senator has an uncanny way of getting what he wants. It takes a long time, sometimes, but the senator is both persuasive and tenacious.

If you dislike this new idea of his, you'd best start on the warpath right now; otherwise, you're apt to wake up some day and find that he has his bill all passed and signed.

Tip For The Arms Parley

One of the most sensible views on the current naval limitations conference in London seems to have been voiced by the Japanese newspaper Asahi.

Asahi, which is said to be speaking for Japanese naval authorities, simply suggests that the delegates call everything off and go home.

It points out that the unsettled conditions in Europe now make a genuine attempt at disarmament almost impossible. Some of the powers attending the conference are going ahead with extensive plans for rearmament even while the conference is in session.

In such case, this Tokyo newspaper suggests what is perhaps the only possible outcome. Adjourn the conference and wait for a more favorable time to reconvene it—why not? By arguing for an agreement at a time when no agreement is humanly possible, the delegates can succeed only in stirring up a good deal of needless ill will.

New York City
January 13, 1936

The Editor,
Jacksonville Journal,
Jacksonville, Ill.

Dear Sir:

At the meeting held in the Court House, January 9th, according to the report of it printed in the Journal the following morning, Mr. Van Praag stated categorically that the outcome of the bond election for the power project could have no bearing on the approval of the water project. This statement, I presume, was made in answer to the assertion I had made in a letter printed in your paper a few days before, that information I had received from Washington indicated that further consideration of the water project had been postponed until after the bond election and that consideration would be given it only in case the vote for the bond issue did not carry.

In order that the people of Jacksonville may know that I was not making a false or unwarranted assertion, I now quote in full a letter from Mr. Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Department of the Interior and Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works. This letter was in answer to an inquiry of mine regarding the status of the water project.

Dec. 26, 1935

My dear Dr. McClelland:
I have your letter of December 9 relative to the Jacksonville waterworks application, ILL-1535.

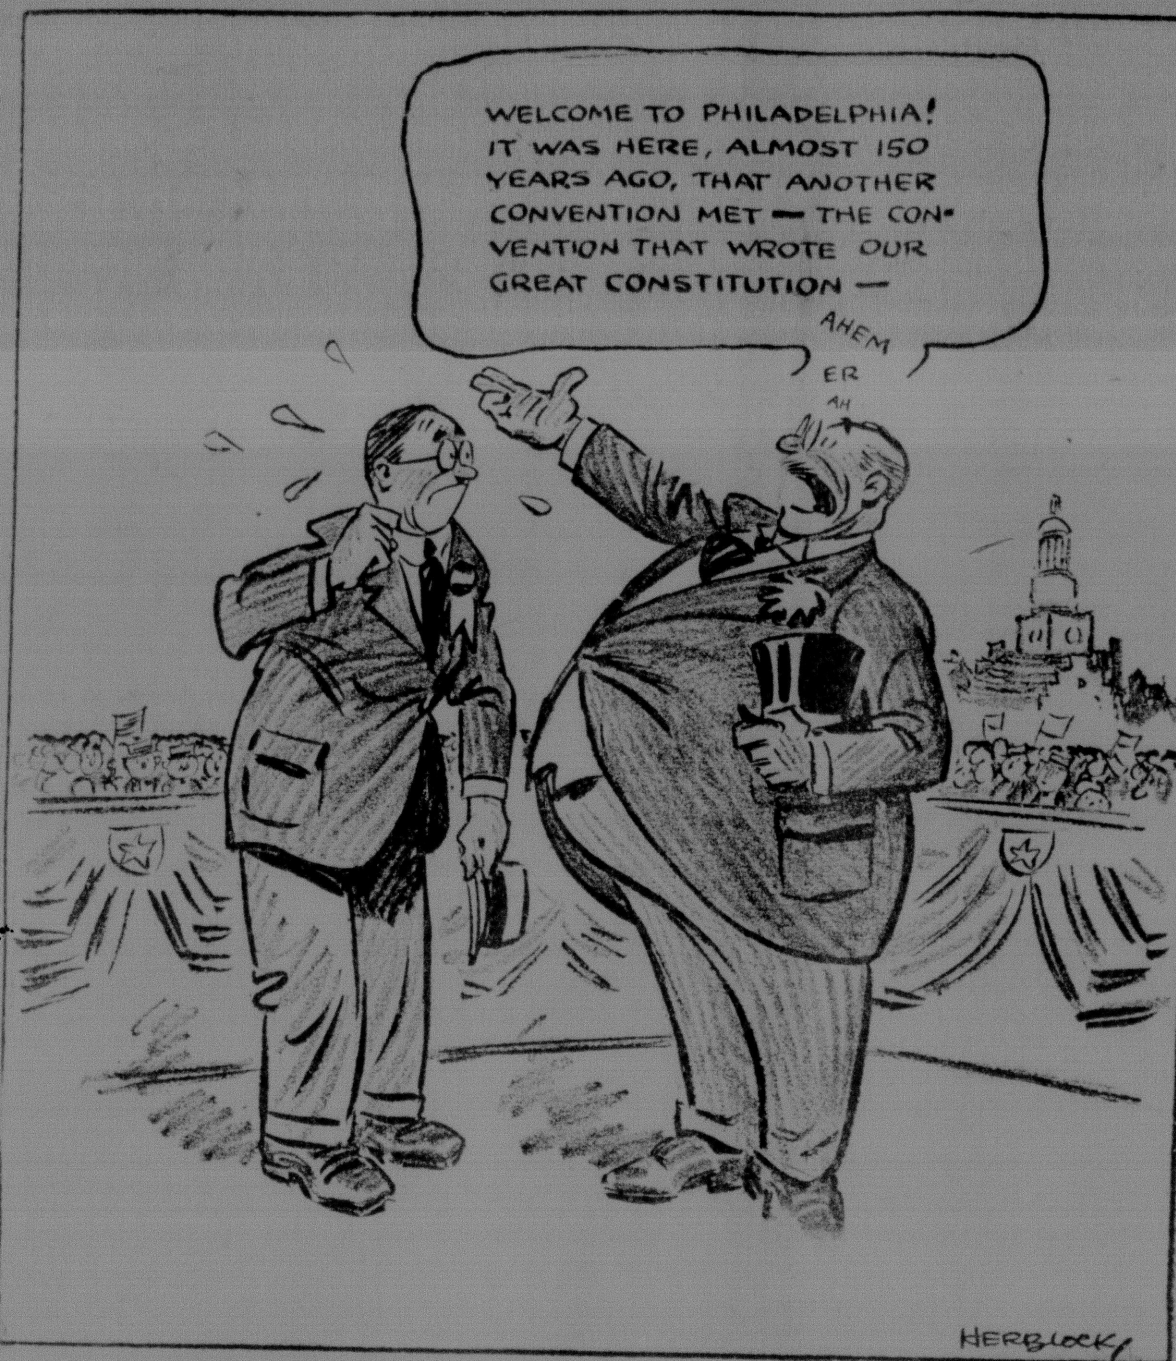

It appears that further action in this case waits upon the outcome of the bond election for the power project, docket No. 8206. I understand that an election was to have been called at an early date and in the event that the vote did not carry, consideration then would be given by PWA to the matter of reinstating the other application.

Inasmuch as our records in Washington do not show what progress has been made toward holding an election, I have asked State Director Bauer for a report. As soon as advice is received from the field, I shall communicate with you further.

Sincerely yours,
Harold L. Ickes,
Administrator.

About a week later I received a letter from Mr. Horatio B. Hackett, advising me that he had received a report from State Director Bauer and that the situation with respect to reinstatement of the waterworks application remains unchanged and that further action in this matter was

"dependent on the result of the bond election on the power project."

The information contained in these letters has such an important bearing on next Tuesday's election that I feel I would be remiss in my duty as a citizen if I did not make it public.

Ever since Mayor Blackburn and the others who accompanied him returned from Washington, attempts have been made by certain advocates of the power project to persuade the people that there was no connection or conflict between the power project and the water project and that the approval of the water project was in no way dependent upon the result of the bond issue. The facts in the case are contrary to this contention. The water project was taken off the list because it was in conflict with the power project. This we were told by the authorities in Washington, and it was later confirmed by the State Director when he required the engineer to remove the generating units in the revised application for the water project. Now, the highest authorities are saying to us that the water project will receive consideration only in the event that the bond issue does not carry.

Very sincerely yours,
Clarence P. McClelland.

Omit Appropriation For Veterans' Care At State Hospital

Drop $165,000 Item From Bill in Congress; Hines Says Care to Continue

Washington, (AP)—The independent offices appropriation bill pending in the house does not contain the usual appropriation for the care of veterans at the Elgin and Jacksonville, Ill., hospitals.

Guy E. Bonney, superintendent of the division of veterans' service in the Illinois Department of Public Welfare, here in the interests of the appropriation, expressed concern yesterday over its omission. Approximately 250 veterans, classified as neuropsychiatric patients, have been cared for in recent years in the state hospitals by the appropriation.

An effort may be made to renege the appropriation, which has amounted to approximately $165,000 for the past six years, when the measure comes before the senate. It was omitted from the bill by the house committee at the suggestion of Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, who has informed Representative Scott Lucas, Havana, Ill., Democrat, that he has the power to continue the care of veterans at state hospitals without the specific appropriation.

Lucas has been assured by Hines that the care will be continued another year.

ICY STREETS CAUSE TROUBLE FOR CARS

Throughout the city last night there was trouble in driving, the surface of the streets being slick from the sleet of Thursday. Yesterday morning a large transport, going west and loaded with Oldsmobiles, skidded on West College avenue at the top of the hill at Illinois College, necessitating the services of a state highway truck to pull over the high point.

Trouble has been general for automobiles, although cinders, placed at corners have aided and are much appreciated by travelers.

Newspaper History Told By Jennings In Rotary Address

First Newspaper Printed in Jacksonville Over 100 Years Ago

Reaugh Jennings, city editor of the Jacksonville Journal, was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Jacksonville Rotary club yesterday, having for his subject, "Newspapers." He was introduced by Dr. S. N. Clark, chairman of the January program committee.

In opening his address Mr. Jennings stated that "newspapers are common and we don't think much about them until we miss an issue or two."

The speaker told how the soldiers in France during the World War missed their newspapers. For many months there were no newspapers available. A home newspaper was as welcome as a letter from home, he declared.

"There are 14,000 newspapers in the United States," the speaker said. "These papers have a circulation of approximately 38,000,000."

Reviewing the history of newspapers in Jacksonville, Mr. Jennings said that the first newspaper was printed in this city in December, 1830. This newspaper later became the Jacksonville Journal, which started a daily publication in 1858.

"In 1901 the first linotype machine was installed in the Journal plant," Mr. Jennings said. "The first Duplex press was added to the equipment in 1903, being replaced six years ago with a modern tubular high speed press."

"The Sentinel was first published in 1835, later becoming the Jacksonville Courier."

Mr. Jennings said that newspapers must cater to all types of readers and must print all the news. In speaking of the two local newspapers, the editor stated that there are 68 correspondents outside of Jacksonville, collecting news each day for the Jacksonville newspapers. One of these correspondents has been writing for the local papers for 32 years.

Guests of the club yesterday were: Lieut. Robert W. Burke of the local CCC camp, Art Still and O. R. Roach of Bloomington.

Hook's Confession Admitted By Court

Defense in Murder Case at Pittsfield Loses Fight To Block It

Pittsfield—Defense lawyers in the trial of William Hook, charged with the murder of his brother, John Hook, lost in their attempt to exclude an alleged confession of the defendant from evidence when Judge A. Clay Williams late Thursday afternoon ruled that it should be admitted as proper testimony.

Defense attorneys, at noon entered a motion to exclude the alleged confession offered by the state. The jury was excused and discussion of the law pertaining to the motion took up the entire afternoon.

The motion followed testimony of Sheriff Wendell Johnson and his chief deputy, Raymond Windsor, to the effect that Hook made the confession in the presence of State's Attorney Merrill Johnston, shortly after his arrest.

Hook is alleged to have killed his brother by a blow on the head, Feb. 2, 1935.

The STRANGE CASE of JULIA CRAIG

by Nard Jones
Copyright NEA 1936

BEGIN HERE TODAY!

JULIA CRAIG, pretty young secretary to GEORGE WOODFORD of the law firm of Woodford and Brooks, is ambitious to become a night club singer.

AMY SANDERS, with whom Julia shares an apartment, discourages her about this, although admitting Julia's voice is better than many professional's.

PETER KEMP, also employed by Woodford and Brooks, is in love with Julia and has asked her to marry him, but Julia discourages his attentions. She tells Peter she is determined to become a singer and he agrees to give her a letter of introduction to his friend, HENRI LAMB, band leader at the Green Club.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III

HAVING made his promise, Peter seemed to hesitate. Then he said, "If Henri Lamb doesn't give you a job, will you marry me?" He saw the sudden dismay in Julia's eyes, and added quickly, "All right. Just pretend I didn't ask you. I think it was the 13th time, and that would be unlucky."

Julia laughed. "It would be, at least for this time, Peter. I'll try hard to persuade Henri Lamb to let me out at the Green Club. But even if he won't—I don't think I'd quit trying so soon."

Next day Julia realized that her ideas about breaking into night club entertaining had been some what vague. In the cold light of morning she saw that it was her spirited argument with Amy which had crystallized the ambition so quickly.

Amy and Julia never breakfasted in the apartment. It was their variable habit to drop in at a small restaurant on the way to work. Julia's morning fare was orange juice, toast, and coffee—but Amy, who had a tendency to curve in what she humorously called "the wrong place," kept rigidly to a breakfast diet of orange juice only. It was over the rim of an orange juice glass that she looked at Julia now.

"Well," she asked quizzically. "Still want to be the female Crosby this morning?"

Julia nodded. "Peter knows Henri Lamb. He's going to give me a letter to him."

"Darned if you don't mean it!" exclaimed Amy in astonishment. "I thought maybe you were just putting on an act last night. Sometimes I feel like trying to crash the movies—but then after a good night's sleep I get over the idea."

THE two left each other at the entrance to the restaurant—Amy to the gown shop, and Julia hurrying toward the tall building on whose top floor rested the dignified offices of Woodford and Brooks. It was one of the largest law firms in the city, and its personnel was a much more complicated affair than the name indicated. For George Woodford and his partner employed a veritable corps of young attorneys—and for each one there was a secretary, in addition to the telephone girl and filing clerks. Theoretically, as Woodford's secretary, Julia Craig had the most enviable job of all the girls. But there was a stifling routine about the work that she did not like; and what worried her most was the thought of being in Woodford's paneled office for years on end—as if it were a cell and she committed to it for a crime of which she had never been guilty.

In the reception hall she met

Julia read, "When you give her a try-out remember I'm in love with her—"

Peter Kemp. He smiled his good morning, and took a sealed envelope from his pocket. On its face was neatly typed "Mr. Henri Lamb, The Green Club."

"Oh, thanks, Peter . . ." Julia returned his smile. "I really do appreciate this a lot."

"That's okay," Kemp told her. "If you're sure it's what you want, then I'm glad I can help. Henri's office is on the second floor of the club. I think the best time to catch him is about 3 in the afternoon."

"Then I'll have to ask Mr. Woodford to let me off."

Peter grinned. "At least you're not going to give up your job first."

"Maybe I should," Julia hesitated.

"Nonsense, Julia, Woodford's out of town today. Why don't you run over to Henri's this afternoon?"

"This afternoon," repeated Julia, frightened a little at the thought. Then, "I . . . I think I will."

Kemp patted her arm. "Good girl. And—good luck."

"Thanks, Peter. I'll need it."

And when the next little electric clock on her desk told Julia it was 20 minutes until 3, she did feel as if she would need all the luck in the world. More nervous than she had ever been in her life, she tilted on her hat, glad that it was the smartest and most recent in her meager wardrobe. Then, with a final and careful look into the mirror, she pocketed Peter's letter and left the office by the side door into the hallway.

DOWNSTAIRS she decided on the extravagance of a taxi. "After all," she thought, "I don't want to be out of breath when I get there."

The taxi drew her up before the Green Club some minutes before 3. But Julia paid the driver hurriedly and walked briskly into the building. She had managed to screw her courage to the sticking point, and she wanted to face Henri Lamb while it was still there.

The pastel-green facade of the building was familiar to her, and she found the wide doors closed but yielding to her touch. When she had stepped inside she was astonished at the sight that met her eyes. The big room was deserted now, and illuminated eerily from only high, small ventilating windows near the ceiling. Cloths were gone from the tables set on tiers above the rather small dance floor—and the chairs were stacked atop the tables.

In the center of the platform she saw the thin metal standard with its microphone at the top. "I wonder," Julia thought, "if I'll be standing there, singing to people in this room . . ."

Involuntarily, she sought the letter Peter Kemp had given her. Holding it as if it were a talisman, she went toward the stairway which she guessed would lead to Henri Lamb's office. Within surprisingly few steps she was in a tiny anteroom which held only three things—a photograph of Henri Lamb and his orchestra, a scarred bench, and a very young man who sat on the end of the bench smoking a cigaret. He surveyed Julia critically and said, "You want to see Mr. Lamb?"

"Yes," she faltered. More than once she had faced irate Woodford clients and turned them away harmlessly. But somehow she was afraid of this very young man. "I—I have a letter to him."

"I'll take it in," the young man said, holding out his hand for it. In a very short time he was facing her again. "Come on in," he said. "Mr. Lamb'll see you."

THE quick magic of Peter's letter gave Julia immeasurable courage. She found Henri Lamb a short, heavy, dapper individual who lost much of his personality out of the black jacket in which he led his band. But he seemed sincere, and Julia liked him.

"Friend of Peter's, eh? Ever do any professional singing?" Julia had to admit she hadn't.

"Well, maybe that's all the better," he turned to the door. "Jim . . . Jim, turn the spot on the mike. Then go down and play for Miss Craig. She feels like singing."

"Okay," Jim said. Then to Julia: "What'd you want to sing?"

"I know most of the new things," she looked at Henri Lamb. "How about 'Accent on Youth'?"

Lamb nodded. "That's a good number. Let's have it. And leave your hat here. I want to see your hair under the spot." When Julia removed her hat he gave a little exclamation of approval. "Say, that ought to look good!"

As Julia went downstairs and across the empty dance floor to the platform, she walked as one in a trance. The spotlight was blinding at first, but she was grateful for it because it hid the big emptiness of the room—and it hid, too, the disconcerting figure of Lamb.

But when Jim started in at the piano, Julia forgot everything but the plaintive, haunting song. And she sang it well. She knew she did.

On the final chorus, Henri Lamb walked close to the microphone. When she had finished, he patted her hand. But he was shaking his head, too, and she heard him say: "Not quite yet. But you're coming along."

"You mean I—I won't do?" "I'm afraid that's it," he looked at her seriously. "It's a tough racket, anyhow, girly. Why don't you forget it?"

Stammering her thanks, her eyes flitting with tears of humiliation, Julia rushed from the platform. She was almost out the door when she remembered she had left her hat upstairs. She ran for it, hoping she wouldn't confront Henri Lamb again.

Beside her hat on his littered desk she saw the half-open letter which Peter Kemp had written to Lamb. Peter had typed it out in clear capitals which even her glance could not miss. It said: DEAR HENRI—THIS IS JULIA CRAIG WHO WANTS TO SING IN YOUR CLUB. BUT WHEN YOU GIVE HER A TRY-OUT I WISH YOU'D REMEMBER I'M IN LOVE WITH HER AND DON'T WANT HER TO BE A SINGER.

Country Schools To Furnish Talent For Franklin Program

Annual Merry-Go-Round at High School Arranged For Monday Night

Franklin—With teachers and pupils in most of the country districts co-operating enthusiastically, the second merry-go-round of Franklin community high district grade schools will be held in the gym next Monday night under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association, which is anxious to render the high school board assistance in securing additional equipment for the high school.

Enough schools are already listed on the program to insure the evening of vocal and instrumental music, readings, dialogues and novelty numbers. Last year the audience thoroughly enjoyed the program given, and no doubt there will be another fine galaxy of budding radio talent before the audience this year.

Luther Wiley, chairman of the P.T.A. program committee, will act as master of ceremonies, and present the entertainers. The numbers scheduled thus far are as follows:

Traffic Is Paralyzed As Ice Coats Streets; Storm Widespread

Traffic was paralyzed here last night when a slight mist fell and froze to convert the streets and other highways into a mass of highly glazed ice, creating a travel condition more serious than any experienced during the present season.

Bus schedules were interrupted and local travel was slowed down to a snail's pace because of the hazardous condition created by the ice.

All highways leading into Jacksonville for several miles out of the city were reported to be covered with sleet, with conditions extremely dangerous in all directions from the city. The few motorists who ventured onto the highways were forced to drive at a very slow rate, and busses that were not cancelled ran from an hour to four hours behind time.

Bath east and west bound busses operated by the Jacksonville Bus line were halted upon their arrival in the city and did not proceed any further on their trips last night. These two carriers arrived in the city about an hour behind time. Other busses operated by the local company were cancelled.

The Greyhound bus due in the city at 4:32 o'clock yesterday afternoon arrived in the city shortly after nine o'clock, but continued on its eastward trip despite the icy condition of the highways. One motorist who drove to the city from St. Louis late yesterday reported that it took him four hours to travel that distance. However, he said after the traveler passed thru Alton. About fifteen miles north of Alton icy highways were encountered and from that place to this city the concrete slab was extremely treacherous.

Ice from this city to Moline was reported, and the conditions west of here were no better, travelers said. The highways between this city and Springfield were also icy, but east of that city there was snow instead of ice, it was said.

The formation of the ice on the streets and other highways began about noon yesterday, and throughout the afternoon and into the night conditions grew worse. Pedestrians were forced to walk with the utmost precaution, and the comparatively few automobiles using the street proceeded at a very slow rate of speed. Local utilities did not report any wire trouble due to the ice.

Several huge transport company trucks were parked in the city last night, the drivers fearing to venture further on the road-rendered so dangerous by the ice. Three huge machines were parked on West College avenue.

Liberal coatings of cinders were spread on the streets at intersections, where it was necessary for motor vehicles to be brought to a halt. This precaution taken no doubt saved many cars from being damaged because of the inability of the drivers to stop.

About midnight there was a cessation of the precipitation which gave an indication that the traffic situation would show an improvement to day.

Dean Roma N. Hawkins, who presented the speaker requested Dr. Swann to speak upon the stratosphere apparatus and his connection with the flights. He told of the construction of the balloon, the many instruments for registering the various records of atmosphere, altitude, pressure, etc., and the results of these trips.

Dr. Swann was in charge of the design and installation of the cosmic ray apparatus used in the flight of both the National Geographic-U. S. Army experimenters and Professor Picard. When the Picard ascension from Dearborn was made a year or so ago, and the altitude record broken, those in charge of the cosmic ray apparatus wished to consult Dr. Swann regarding certain operations. They did so by radio, so that Swann in Philadelphia, had the unique experience of sharing in the working out of a laboratory experiment being carried on hundreds of miles away and miles high in the air.

DR. L. K. HALLOCK
ENTERTAINS CCC
CAMP ENROLLEES

Rope magic presented by Dr. L. K. Hallock, entertained members of the local CCC camp last night. Dr. Hallock demonstrated in a very interesting manner various knots and exercises new to them.

A group of readings and whistling selections by Miss Daisy Seymour also entertained the enrollees at the camp. Fred E. Darr was in charge of the program.

Because of the limited space at the recreation building at the camp only enrollees are included in the audience of the weekly programs.

MRS. GARRETT SUFFERS

Mrs. H. F. Garrett, 1261 South East street, suffered a compound fracture of her right shoulder when she fell at her home early last night. Mrs. Garrett slipped and fell on the back porch of her home suffering injury. She was removed to Our Saviour's hospital, where she will be a patient for a few days.

Births Increase In Greene County During Past Year

232 Births, 214 Deaths In Twelve Months; Other
News Notes

Carrollton, Ill., Jan. 17.—Returns on vital statistics of Greene county for the year 1935 show there were 332 births and 214 deaths in the county during the year. These figures show that there were 55 per cent more births than deaths last year. Another interesting fact is that there were 174 marriage licenses issued and only 19 divorces granted, indicating that over nine out of ten licenses issued are satisfactory to the persons who have been united by them.

Investigation of the records for several years show that each year there is an average of about 100 more births than deaths in the county. According to these figures the population of the county should have shown a much larger gain in the years than it has. This shortage in gain is explained by the fact that the lure of new fields, especially the large city, is too great for the young people, so the population has only shown a very small gain in the past ten years.

The stockholders of the Greene County National Bank in Carrollton met Tuesday afternoon for the first annual meeting since its organization, December 16, 1935. The following were elected directors to serve for one year: Stuart E. Pierson, president; Oscar H. Vivell, Sam Edwards, Charles T. Meek. The statement of the business of the bank since the opening date was presented by the officers and approved by the stockholders present. Following the stockholders meeting the directors held a meeting for the purpose of electing officers for the year. The following were chosen: Stuart E. Pierson, president; Oscar H. Vivell, vice president; Clyde A. Aull, executive vice president; Clyde Linder, cashier; A. A. Schmitz, assistant cashier, John Vaughn and Mrs. Media D. Dowdall were re-employed. The executive committee was appointed as follows: O. H. Vivell, Sam Edwards and Clyde Aull.

The Presbyterian Sunday school class No. 3 met Tuesday night with Mrs. Charles H. Eldred; assisting hostesses, Mrs. Earl Kistler, Mrs. Walter D. Thomas and Miss Helen Duncan. Twenty-six members were present. A social hour and refreshments followed the business meeting.

Members of the club present were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin of Fieldon; James Midkiff of St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. John Connole of Carrollton. The surprise of the event was an open house party in Mr. Angle's honor, from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., during which time over 35 friends called and greeted the guest. Round and Round
Go Travelers on City Thorofares

Jacksonville weather is the latest patient to succumb to the "Round and Round" epidemic. First it was the "Mule" goes round and around, and then the idea was adopted to fit everything from the six day bike racer to the dizzy gyrations of politicians.

Last night anyone who ventured on the glassy walks and pavements felt the atmosphere of the New Year's Eve music in a much more disagreeable way.

Some of the sidewalks over the well heated basements of business houses were thawing last evening, but on the pavements and outlying walks, cars and pedestrians alike were careening around corners with a swing, slide and swear technique that only hoped to avoid other objects or awkward spills.

So until somebody decides to push the final and "third valve down," and lets loose a little of the warmth that usually goes with the currently popular song, or until a blanket of snow covers the slippery surface, local citizens will have to grow accustomed to an occasional attack of the malady.

Bolton Testifies Against 3 Charged With Kidnaping

Former Morgan Man, Confessed Kidnaping, On Stand In St. Paul

St. Paul, Jan. 17.—(P)—Byron Bolton, confessed kidnaper, testified against three men charged as conspirators with him as the second anniversary of the Edward G. Bremer kidnaping today found the government proceeding against remnants of the 22 persons indicted for the crime. Bremer, a banker, was kidnaped January 17, 1934, and released 22 days later after payment of $200,000 ransom.

Defendants in the present trial are William Weaver, indicted as an actual abductor; Harry Sawyer, alleged "finger-man"; and Cassius McDonald, Detroit engineer charged with having exchanged ransom money for other currency.

Of the 22 originally indicted—McDonald was not among these—six were convicted and three pleaded guilty. One was dead or freed, excepting Myrtle Eaton, who is held but not on trial.

Only three still are sought. They include the current candidate for public enemy No. 1, Alvin Karpis, and Harry Campbell and Dr. Joseph P. Moran, Chicago physician. Moran was charged with performing fingerprint operations on members of the kidnaping ring. He has several times been reported dead.

Bolton, playing the "star witness" role for the second time, named William Weaver and four other members of the Barker-Karpis gang as having been present at the Bensenville, Ill., home where Bremer was held captive by the gang. He testified in the previous trial after pleading guilty, but has not been sentenced.

Karpis, Campbell, Barker and Harold Alderton, previously convicted, he named as occupants of the "hide-out."

Weaver and Sawyer, he added, were present at subsequent conferences over disposal of the ransom. In this connection he quoted Barker as saying he had a "man from Detroit" who would handle the ransom money exchange for 25 per cent, going to Cuba to carry it out.

He referred to the ransom exchange as "cash," a term Prosecutor Geo. F. Sullivan has declared was used to designate McDonald, the government charges the engineer exchanged nearly half of the $200,000 ransom in Cuba.

Byron Bolton is a former resident of Morgan county, at one time making his home in the south part of the county.
